The first of these is the fact that the government has been unable to maintain a stable currency. The result has been a constant devaluation of the national currency, which has led to a loss of confidence in the government and its policies.
 This has in turn led to a loss of investment and a decline in the economy.
 The second major problem is the lack of a clear economic strategy. The government has been unable to formulate a coherent plan for the future, which has led to a series of ad hoc decisions and policies. This has resulted in a lack of direction and a failure to address the country's long-term needs.
 The third major problem is the corruption and inefficiency of the government. The public sector is riddled with corruption, and the private sector is often hindered by bureaucratic red tape. This has led to a loss of productivity and a decline in the standard of living.
